Value moves with the share price. Bloomberg put Eric Trump's stake at about $548 million on the first trading day; the Washington Examiner, citing Bloomberg, said it reached as much as $600 million intraday. The company's 2026 proxy (ownership as of Apr 10, 2026) shows him with 285,000 Class A and 68,147,664 Class B shares (68,432,664 in total) and 9.3% of voting power. These counts predate a 1-for-15 reverse split of Class A and Class B shares effective Jul 2, 2026 (8-K filed Jul 6, 2026); adjusted for it, his holding is about 4.56 million shares, this ledger's arithmetic rather than a filed figure. The proxy says his Mar 31, 2025 advisory agreement pays no compensation. Hut 8, which contributed its mining machines, holds 80%.

WHAT HAPPENED

American Bitcoin is a bitcoin mining company backed by Eric Trump and Don Jr. In 2025 the Canadian miner Hut 8 contributed its mining operation in exchange for 80 percent of the company, and the company went public on Nasdaq on September 3, 2025 through a merger with Gryphon Digital Mining.

The company's 2026 proxy statement lists Eric Trump as holding about 68.4 million shares and 9.3 percent of the voting power. Bloomberg valued his stake at about $548 million on the first day of trading, and the Washington Examiner, citing Bloomberg, said it touched $600 million during the day. The stock was volatile that day, rising as much as 39 percent before closing below its opening price, so the value of the stake moves with the market.

No federal action specific to the company has been identified. It is listed here as a major source of family wealth tied to an industry the administration regulates.
