Involves Don Jr.

The $500,000 Executive Branch club

C Alleged

The club's ownership, fee and founding members are reported by Axios and Washingtonian. The SEC dismissal is cited through one outlet, TechCrunch; the court filing was not opened. Whether specific members paid the full fee is not public. Kelly Loeffler's holding in Executive Branch, LLC is read from her own financial disclosure, and the DC business registry lists Executive Branch LLC at 1070 Wisconsin Avenue NW with its purpose as "Private club".

The action is dated 272 days after the payment.

WHAT HAPPENED

In April 2025 Don Jr. and partners launched Executive Branch, a private club in Georgetown. Axios reported the owners as Don Jr., the lead investor, along with Omeed Malik and Chris Buskirk of 1789 Capital and Zach and Alex Witkoff, sons of the president's special envoy. A founding membership was listed at $500,000, with members screened for loyalty to Trump and approved by the owners.

Founding members named in reporting include David Sacks, investor Chamath Palihapitiya, lobbyist Jeff Miller, and Cameron and Tyler Winklevoss, who run the crypto exchange Gemini.

SBA Administrator Kelly Loeffler's annual financial disclosure for 2025 lists an interest in Executive Branch, LLC valued at $250,001 to $500,000. It does not appear on her January 2025 nominee report.

The SEC had sued Gemini in 2023 over its Earn lending product. On January 23, 2026, the SEC and Gemini jointly asked the court to dismiss the case, citing a 2024 New York settlement that returned customers' assets. What any individual member paid the club is not public.
